

FXED ETF vs. AGG ETF

1 Year Performance Comparison (NAV)

ETF Investors are starting to notice that Index investing in fixed income bonds is less effective versus a smaller active curated set of bonds and high yield funds. At the end of the day, performance matters.

Bigger Doesn't Always Mean Better

When investing, some indexes have the potential to get watered down by growing too large, while smaller active funds have the potential to generate Alpha.

The FXED ETF has 54 holdings while the AGG ETF has 11,540 holdings in the fund (as of 5/31/24).

The performance data quoted represents past performance. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. The investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when sold or redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Returns less than one year are not annualized. For the most recent month-end-performance, please call (833) 916-9056. For standardized performance, please visit www.soundetfs.com/fxed.

FXED

Before investing you should carefully consider the Fund's investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses. This and other information is in the prospectus. A prospectus may be obtained by calling (833) 916-9056 or visiting www.soundetfs.com. Please read the prospectus carefully before you invest.

Investing involves risk, including the potential loss of principal. There is no guarantee that the Fund's investment strategy will be successful. Shares may trade at a premium or discount to their NAV in the secondary market. The Fund is new and has a limited operating history. The Fund has a limited number of financial institutions that are authorized to purchase and redeem shares directly from the Fund; and there may be a limited number of market makers or other liquidity providers in the marketplace.

Since the Fund is actively managed, it does not seek to replicate the performance of a specified index. The Fund may frequently trade all or a significant portion of its portfolio; and have higher portfolio turnover than funds that do seek to replicate the performance of an index. Equity securities, such as common stocks, are subject to market, economic, and business risks that may cause their prices to fluctuate. Companies may reduce or discontinue dividends at any time and there is no guarantee that the fund will make regular monthly dividend payments.

The securities of large-capitalization companies may be relatively mature compared to smaller companies and therefore subject to slower growth during times of economic expansion. The securities of mid-capitalization companies may be more vulnerable to adverse issuer, market, political, or economic developments than securities of large-capitalization companies.

The Fund is considered to be non-diversified, which means that it may invest more of its assets in the securities of a single issuer or a smaller number of issuers than if it were a diversified fund.

Definitions: P/E ratio: The price-to-earnings (P/E) ratio measures a company's current share price relative to its per-share earnings. S&P 500: The Standard and Poor's 500, or simply the S&P 500, is a stock market index tracking the stock performance of 500 of the largest companies listed on stock exchanges in the United States.
